WEDDING TRADITIONS

The Chuppah: The wedding canopy on four posts that our ceremony takes place beneath. The chuppah symbolizes the home that we will create together in our married life. It's open walls signify that family and friends, old and new, will always be welcome.

Unity Candle: A Christian wedding tradition meant to symbolize the stages of our lives. The two lit candles represent our lives to this moment - they are two distinct lights, each capable of going its separate way. Today, at the ceremony, we join these separate lights uniting them into one.

Ketubah: Jewish marriage contract with ancient roots signed before the ceremony. This document highlights our commitment to building a home based on love, blending our two cultures and a mutual respect for one another.

Breaking of the Glass: This Jewish tradition symbolizes that love, like glass, is fragile and must be protected. The glass shattering marks the beginning of the celebration.

THANK YOU

THANK YOU for traveling from near and far to share this special day with us. As we begin our lives as a married couple, we are honored to have you here to celebrate our love and commitment to one another.

We would especially like to thank our parents for providing us with a lifetime of unconditional love and support and for teaching us the importance of family. We are so grateful for all they have done to support us today and every day.

IN LOVING MEMORY

We remember those who are no longer with us but whose love continues to enrich our lives. They will forever be in our hearts:

June and Jim O'Donnell – Grandparents of the bride
Anne and Mickey Miotto – Grandparents of the bride
Natalie and Rubin Brodsky – Grandparents of the groom
Doris and Mendel Eigenberg – Grandparents of the groom
Warren Komins – Grandfather of the groom
